This is a struggle for supremacy. We must win or they will, and there will be no quarter for us if they win."

After reading it over he said:

"There is certainly a mistake with reference to the above statement attributed to me. I have no recollection of it. I cannot, of course, recall the exact words of a running conversation during a game of golf, but if the word hate was used it was rather in the sense of a natural jealousy, not on the pear of Erance alone, but of any European competitors of the United States, on account of our great industrial success in recent years. on account of our great industrial suc-cess in recent years.

"I cherist none but the most kindly feelings toward France, and have oc-casion to do se, especially for all the courteous attentions shown me by the Franch people during my recent visit there from the time of my arrival unti-my departure, and my expressions to them were only of the most friendly character on the part of the United States toward France for the kindness hown us in the past, and especially in our early history."
